Judging from the large number of car loads of lumber that is being brought to Raleigh daily, it would seem that this city is going ahead. Well it is, and few of our citizens can imagine how much timber is used here in a twelve months.

The Progressive Farmer says a woman it St. Matthew's township, Wake county, plows a goat. Last year she made a bale of cotton, 2; barrels of corn, four bushels of peas and 75 bushels of potatoes. In addition to this she has; a good garden.

Twenty smoke-stacks can be seen from the top of the capitol, sending up clouds of smoke from all directions. What does this mean? Well they are indications of our industries. We have as in Raleigh yesterday tells the Chronicle that, excepting the grain, the crop proshere as any other place in the State. It would surprise you to enumerate them.

It is not generally known, but Mr. W. G. Upchurch, of this city, has two dairy farms; one on which he has seventy odd Jerseys, known as "Woodland," and at the other farm thirty-five Devons. One of these farms is known as "butter" and the other as "milk" farm. Mr. Upchurch ships butter to the city of Richmond. This is an important fact to our people, especially when about two hundred pounds are sent away weekly.

Would it not be a good idea for the Farmers' Alliance of North Carolina to hold a grand Alliance fair the coming season, at Raleigh, in connection with the North Carolina Agricultural Society? This Society has already permanently located ground with all necessary build. THE INDUSTRIES OF RALEIGH. ings. There can be no doubt of Raleigh These Are Facts and Figures That Will being the place to hold such a fair. It is the capital of the State, it is central, it is accessible by reason of its being a great railroad centre. It has more accomodations, more public halls and offers greater inducements than any other place in the State for such a fair. Let it be held two weeks and the railroad authorities will bring the people in by culture and industry.

From what has already been done, there is no doubt but that the celebrabration on the Fourth will be a success: still as it is to the interest of every citizen to build un our city, and as all great gatherings contribute to this end; so another opportunity is at hand.

Put your hands in your pocket and subscribe liberally. If you are a business man it is to your interest—if you are a private citizen it is the same. The gentlemen composing the commit-tee in charge are well known business men, and what they undertake they do them, as it next to impossible to see every one individually.

By a combined effort let us make this the greatest success of this kind ever witnessed in our beautiful City of Oaks.

Edity.

The opinion prevails to some extent toat Raleigh is not a manufacturing or industrial community; that it is commercial and educational altogether. This idea has grown out of the fact that the mercantile and educational interests are the thousands. Why not have a grand so far ahead of many other places of its rally at Raleigh in the interest of agritries have never been noticed. The following list of our industrial enterprises -many of which manufacture a large number of useful agricultural, mechanical and other articles-will show that she is abreast with any town in the country so far as diversified industries are concerned. Raleigh has never encouraged sudden and speculative booms, while on the other hand its growth has been solid and yet comparatively rapid. The list of the industries are as follows: 1 large cotton factory; 1 oil mill and fer-tilizer factory; 1 phosphate or fertilizer works; 2 pants factories; 1 car company, that builds cars, flats &c; 1 large wagon factory; 1 carriage and buggy factory, that make express wagons a specialty; 2 plug tobacco manufactories. 3 candy factories; 2 small wagon factories and repair shops; 1 furniture factory; 1 factory that make plows, cotton planters, car wheels and other eastings; 1 factory that make engines, boilers, cotton seed crushers, trucks for tram-ways, castings and repair shops; 1 suspender factory; 1 factory that make shirts and drawers. 1 spring bed factory; 2 large ice fac-tories; 2 large blank book manufactories; had gone whale fishing. Last night we 1 tobacco flue factory; 2 harness factories, one of which has branches in three other towns; 2 places that manufacture all kinds of tin ware, for the wholesales

REPUBLICAN SUCCESS AS PROBABLE AS A SNOW STORM

IN AUGUST. The Republican Administration Has terests of the People.

[Interview with J. C. L. Harris in Raleigh Letter to Statesville Landmark.]

Knowing that Mr. "Loge" Harris is a kinsman of Eaves and that they have always been close personal and political friends, and that Harris was for Eaves in this fight and against Mott, I spoke to him ahout the matter and was suron the spot and which is as follows:

"I know nothing of the Eaves and Mott fight. Just at present I am attending strictly to my own private affairs. I am under no obligations whatever to the Republican party. I have mer positions on account of our light served that party faithfully, in season stock. the water for the past two or three days has become muddy.

And out of season, for twenty-five years, and whenever I have desired any place have always had the support and good last week. will of the Democrats and the malicious and damnable opposition of a lot of in-famous and scoundrelly Republicans. I am hoping for no place under the Federal government. I am an independent citizen; am seeking no favors, and in any contest in which I may be engaged hereafter I shall give no quarter, and not be deterred from doing whatever my judgment dictates, without any regard whatever to results. As to Mr. Eaves, I presume he is able to manage his own affairs. He has not at any time sought my advice or assistance, and I do not suppose that he is in need of either. He doubtless prefers to secure his confirmation by his own personal efforts, assisted by the internal revenue bureau at Washington, rather than be under obligations to any citizen of this State. It is not my province to criticise this policy of Mr. Eaves; he is a man of good judgment, and ought to know what is best for himself, unless he is like the man in law who undertakes to advise himself, and more freequently than otherwise has a fool for a client. As to the calling of a State convention, I am simply secretary of the State committee. It is not a part of my duties to make gratuitous suggestions to the chairman and the members of the committee. I have not made any and I shall not do so. I am not responsible for action or non-action. I suppose the conduct of Mr. Eaves will be governed by the decision of the Senate on his nomination. If he should be confirmed, then and in that event he will call a convention and endeavor to control the organization of the State committee in the interest of Mr. Harrison for 1892. If he should be rejected, or not confirmed by 12.05. non action, and should not be re-appointed, then I suppose he would be an opponent of the administration. It is possible, perhaps, barely possible, that Mr. Eaves may have considered that the defeat of the Blair bill, the failure to repeal the internal revenue laws, and the increased appropriations by which the internal revenue laws are permanently fixed as a source of taxation and revenue, the failure to passa bill authorizing the free coinage of silver, the blind and utter disregard of the depression in agriculture and the failure to provide any nelief therefor, to say nothing of the matter of appointments, have rendered Republican success in North Carolina, or any sub-division thereof, in the year of grace, 1890, as probable- and not more so-as a snowstorm in August. And Mr. Eaves may be of the further opinion that the bitter sectional policy of the national administration and the utter disregard of Southern Republicans in matters of appointments not confined to the States, is the result of a desire that every white Southern Republican shall join the Democracy > facts. "As to Dr. Mott, he and I settled our political differences in 1888, and since that time he has been my outspoken friend, both personally and politically. Under no circumstances would I antagonize him. I greatly regret the breach between he and Mr. Eaves, and I wish it might be settled satisfactorily to both.
